Featured Procedures: Cheek Augmentation with Radiesse® and Medium Depth Chemical Peel

Cheek Augmentation with Radiesse®

The heart-shaped face with high cheekbones is often associated with beauty and youth. With aging, the cheeks often droop downward causing heaviness of the lower face. Cheek augmentation with Radiesse can restore the cheekbone area and balance the face for a more youthful appearance. The procedure is minimally invasive and requires little to no down time. Radiesse is injected below the skin using a local numbing agent. The in-office procedure takes 20 to 40 minutes. Common side effects are mild redness, swelling, bleeding and bruising that can often be camouflaged with cover-up.

Medium Depth Chemical Peel

If you are looking for a procedure that brightens the skin, removes brown spots, softens wrinkles and improves mild acne scars, then a medium depth chemical may be right for you. Fall and Winter are the best time to have a medium depth chemical peel because very limited sun exposure is required. Retin-A® (tretinoin) is often prescribed two weeks before the peel to exfoliate the face. During the peel, two chemical solutions are applied to the face causing a warm, stinging sensation that lasts for a few minutes. Most people tolerate the process very well. Afterwards, plan for a week of down time.
